The purpose of NMTIE ( www.nmtie.net ) is to further the use of technology, communications, and information resources in New Mexico K-20 education, improving instruction, research, and administration within educational institutions statewide. The group organizes conferences and training events throughout New Mexico.

Attendees of the NMTIE annual conference can visit NACR and Extreme Networks at Booth 26 and receive a free giveaway while learning more about the companies' technology solutions for education.

"NACR is pleased to support NMTIE and be a part of this worthy event," said Dennis Clevenger, Western Regional Vice President of NACR. "It enables us to connect one-on-one with educators having a wide range of needs and help them use technology to solve problems and improve the quality and delivery of educational resources for students and teachers throughout New Mexico."

NACR is a leading independent integrator of best-in-class communications, collaboration, and customer interaction solutions — delivering comprehensive sales, consultative, training, and technical support, as well as managed services and maintenance. The company works closely with Extreme Networks and other leading technology innovators to integrate hardware, software, and applications into end-to-end multivendor solutions for diverse markets including education and the public sector.

Extreme Networks solutions offer a robust feature set for education customers and are cost-effective.. Together, the companies offer end-to-end support for integrated multivendor voice and data solutions — supporting data connectivity across school networks and integration with voice systems.

In attendance at the NACR-Extreme Networks booth will be Deb Cattin, Melanie Hager, and Stephanie Plymate Zmroczek, who are NACR National Account Managers (NAMs) serving New Mexico. The booth will highlight unified communications, mobility, and other solutions that can help educational organizations reduce costs and extend resources to employees and students across locations.

The 2011 NMTIE conference will feature keynote speakers, panel discussions, exhibitor presentations, and workshops on topics including cloud computing, faculty training, IT implementation, library liaison programs, mobility, research network deployment, social media, online program coordination, and much more.

Existing customers who will be attending the conference can contact their NACR or Extreme Networks representative to arrange a meeting at the event. New customers and organizations that want more information can also contact NACR at 1-888-321-6227.
